E. E. Brown Traces to a Political Emergency

IN FLYNN'S FIRST CANVASS

Claims the Very Inception of It as His Own Idea.

Guthrie, O. T., May 16 -Amid the general rejoicing in Oklahoma over the passage of the free homes bill, how many of the glad hearts are acquainted with the political history of the bill and when it was first conceived as a Republican measure? This history is given by E. E. Brown, editor of the Oklahoma City Times-Journal, who goes back to the con vention which nominated Flynn for the first time. There was a bolt in the convention, seventy-nine delegates withdrawing, leaving eighty-one delegates to complete the work of forming a platform As a result of this unusual break the piatform was hurriedly voted upon in an noomplete form. A few days later the Republicans realized the folly of their acts and began to cast about for a means of patching up their fences. With this purpose in view Mr. Brown wrote Mr. Flynn suggesting that he commit himself to the proposition that all government lands should be given to the settlers without other cost than the land office fees, and suggesting further that in cuso the proposition met his approval it would be a good idea to have a letter on the subject addressed to him by Captain Delancy, receiver of the Oklahoma City land office, which, together with the reply, could be printed, thus putting him upon record on this question. Mr. Flynn eaw the importance of the measure, its value in a compaign and also the hercufean task its enactment into law must be. He stated his position frankly and clearly, calling attention to the magnitude of the undertaking, but so earnestly promising to use his whole strength in unendeavor to secure this boon for the settiers upon the lands of Oklahoma that everybody believed he would do just as ne said he would. The Populists and Democrats both endorsed the measure, but it was already Flynn's, and their endorsement was an endorsement of Flynn, During his first term Flynn made little with an extravagant and proposterous proposition, so thought the members of alld congress take in his proposition that states having lands in a condition simifor to that existing in Oklahoma could feet beneath the bed of the river. not be induced to waste time upon it. districts contained government lands to join him, and through their combined ! efform the bill pussed the house. His successo staplished nothing with the measure Again Flynn was put forward and elected over the combined majority by 19,900, Washington with a determination to win All through the campaign and after his oton he spoke in the most confident through. I commenced taking it again and felt that I was improving faster than at first. DECISION FOR LIQUOR DEALERS These Outside of Indian Territory

Not L able as "Intraducers." Ardmore, I. T., May 16,-Judge Hosea Fownsend, United States judge for the southern district, has rendered a decison here which will have far-reaching reults. The case, which was to be a ter case, came up before him on an agreed natement of facts, and involved the liadlivy of liquor dealers living outside of the territory, to criminal prosecution for iling orders for liquor sent them by residents of the territory. The court held that the transaction was executory until the dealer had selected and set spart the particular spirituous liquor rith which the order was to be filled; that the executory contract of sale was not complete until such selection and segegation of the particular brand and uantity had been made, and that as this coursed outside of the territory, where such sales are legal, the transaction must be held to have taken place outside of the territory and the sale is therefore egal and not in contravention of any tatute or law governing this country The court further held on the question of introduction that the sale, being complete, legal transaction outside of the territory, did not make the denier liable of be charge of introducing, as his contract was complete when he delivered the goods at the office of the common cartier for transportation to the consigner and that the common carrier thereupon became the agent of the consignes for the dare, C. B. Apperson and B. N. Wooddelivery of the goods and that the consignee alone was liable on a criminal harge of introducing whisky. As a re cult of this decision all cases pending in he courts of this district against foreign allowed to choose his own delegates.
